MRS. SAWYER DIES FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Eight Children Surround Her With Love and Thoughtfulness in the Last Hours of Her Life -Eighty-three Years Old.

FUNERAL WAS HELD SUNDAY

Mrs. Frances Horr Lamar Sawyer died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Sawyer in this city Friday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock after a week's illness. She was surrounded by her children, four of them came from three distant States to be with their mother in the last moments of her life. Mrs. Sawyer was seriously ill just a week, but all winter she was not well and often remarked that she would not be here much longer. Her death was due to senility, as she was eighty-three years, nine months and thirteen days old.

Mrs. Sawyer was born in Hancock county, near Hawesville, June 13, 1831, and was married to Thomas Henry Sawyer in 1848. An interesting event in their lives was an overland trip made to California in 1852, of which Mrs. Sawyer prepared an account for the Breckenridge News some years ago when it was published. In 1864 they took up their permanent residence in Cloverport. There were eleven children, eight of whom are living as follows: Mrs. J. D. Anderson of Whitesboro, Texas; C. P. Sawyer and T. F. Sawyer, of Cloverport; Mrs. B. S. Whitehouse, of West Point; Mrs. S. D. Lloyd, of Bexley, Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Mrs. Nannie S. Wills, Louisville; Mrs. A. N. Heston, of Sikeston, Mo., and J. J. Sawyer, of Cloverport.

The funeral was conducted from the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Rev. E. O. Cottrell, pastor of the Baptist church of which Mrs. Sawyer was a member. The Rev. W. C. Frank assisted, reading the thirty-first chapter of Proverbs, which gives the picture of an ideal mother which was true of Mrs. Sawyer. Music was rendered at the residence and at the grave in the Cloverport cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Frank Payne, Chas. E. Lightfoot, J. C. Nolte, Morton Penick, C. W. Weatherholt and L. E. Perkins.

Sweet flowers were sent in memory of Mrs. Sawyer.

Miss Gense Wills, of Louisville; Mrs. Sue Hawley, of Hawesville; Mrs. P. M. Beard, of Hardinsburg, and Richard Whitehouse, of West Point, were the family connections who came to attend the funeral.

DINNER AT OELZE'S HALL.

Many Baptists of the Breckenridge Baptist Association missed splendid addresses and a delicious dinner at Oelze's Hall Friday when they stayed away from the Missionary Conference at the Baptist church in this city. The program was opened in the morning by the Rev. E. O. Cottrell and the Rev. O. J. Cole, of Bowling Green. Short reports were given from a few of the churches represented. Sam Robbins and Hayden Curl, of Ammons, Ky., said their church was not doing its best. Rev. Harvey English, of Stephensport, said the Baptist church there was without a pastor and thought "most any preacher would be good enough" J. L. DeHart, of McQuady, spoke with ambition for his church. Miss Pearl Belle Mattingly, of Garfield, represented the Garfield church. Miss Esther Payne and Miss Cecil Dix, of Stephensport, were here. The young women are enthusiastic workers in their churches. Miss Payne rendered beautifully a solo in the afternoon.

COOPER TALKED TO MANY FARMERS

Great European War Will Not Affect Distribution of Tanlac.

Lexington, March 30.—Thousands of farmers from Fayette and adjoining counties heard L. T. Cooper, the great philanthropist, in Lexington recently. Cooper gave one of his famous lectures on health and hygiene, in connection with an interesting demonstration of the merits of Tanlac, the remarkable medicine he is introducing to the American people.

Several score of these same farmers took part in the agricultural exposition conducted by Cooper at his own personal expense in Lexington. Many of the displays excelled the exhibits seen at the county fairs, and have attracted widespread attention throughout Kentucky.

In speaking of Tanlac and the remarkable cures his great medicine is fulfilling, Cooper said to the farmers:

"Tanlac, gentlemen, is not a common patent medicine. Tanlac is a proprietary medicine—the kind of medicine recently spoken of by Hon. Oscar Underwood, the Democratic leader of the House of Representatives in our national Congress at Washington, D. C. You all know that Mr. Underwood was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, and that he is a man of great ability and integrity. He is a native Kentuckian, too."

"Realizing what a real hardship it would bring to the thousands of American people who daily use Tanlac and similar proprietary medicines, should these preparations be included among the popular commodities upon which a special revenue tax was placed, Congressman Underwood, with characteristic safeguard of the people's rights, placed himself on record as unalterably opposed to anything that would increase the price of proprietary medicines, or which would tend to deprive the working man of his best friends."

"The result was that Tanlac and similar proprietary medicines were stricken completely off the war revenues bill. Thus it is, gentlemen, that the thousands of sufferers in this country are enabled to obtain Tanlac now at a price within reach of the most modest means."

Here, Cooper, holding the attention of the great assemblage, explained the causes and enumerated the symptoms of stomach, liver and kidney troubles.

"Most of the so-called stomach, liver and kidney troubles," said the noted student, "are due almost entirely to catarrhal inflammation of those organs. The constant coughing up of mucus, dull, throbbing headaches, pains in the pit of the stomach, side and kidney region, lost appetite, nervousness, lost ambition, depression of spirits and susceptibility to coughs and colds, are common symptoms of this miserable condition from which so many suffer."

Cooper then produced hundreds of testimonials from Lexington people as convincing evidence of the genuine merits of Tanlac.

Tanlac is sold in Cloverport by Wedding's Drug Store and in Irvington by Irvington Pharmacy.

ANDY ADKISSON

Dies at the Age of Seventy Years—One of Best Known Men in Breckenridge County.

Lodiburg, March 29.—(Special)—Andy Adkisson was born in 1844, joined the Walnut Grove Baptist church in 1886, and died March 25, 1915, at the age of 70 years and a few months. There was just nine days difference in his death and brother, Dr. S. B. Adkisson's death.

He died of pneumonia fever. Everything was done that loving hands could do but no avail. On March 25, he breathed his last, on the 26th he was followed to the Walnut Grove cemetery by a large concourse of mourning relatives and friends. He leaves two brothers, Clint and Samuel Adkisson, and one sister, Mollie. The funeral services were conducted by T. B. Henderson. The pall-bearers were: W. N. Head, Owen Parks, Chas. Claycomb, B. F. Hardin, Tom Compton and A. J. Keys.

Andy Adkisson was one of the best citizens that Breckenridge county afforded. He was indeed a most lovable man, a Christian gentleman, strictly honest, exact and fair to a fault in all his dealings with his fellowmen. He was liked and admired by every one because of his universal kindness and his disposition to make friends. Socially he had few equals, and few men had so many friends.

Mr. Adkisson will be sadly missed in this community where he has lived and spent his whole life.

WELL TOLD

By a Cloverport Resident.

The following has more interest for Cloverport residents than it otherwise would have because Mr. Johnson is one of ourselves, a citizen of Cloverport. If it proved of assistance to but one person in Cloverport, it will have been well worth the telling.

W. M. Johnson, prop. restaurant, Cloverport, Ky., says: "For six years I was afflicted with kidney trouble. I had pains in the small of my back and was lame when I got up in the morning. I tired easily, felt languid and was nervous. The passage of the kidney secretions were too frequent, obliging me to get up at night. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me great relief. You may continue publishing the endorsement I have given Doan's Kidney Pills before."

Slight Symptoms Sometimes Presage Serious Results.

Do you feel tired, have you a sallow complexion, constipation, headache, bad breath, sleeplessness or circles around your eyes? If so, you are undoubtedly suffering from some liver complaint.

Perhaps you don't feel very badly now, but delay is dangerous. To allow your liver to continue out of order, is to invite a serious chronic illness.

Whenever you have the slightest symptoms of liver trouble, stop it immediately. You can do it harmlessly and mildly by taking LIV-VER LAX, the natural vegetable compound that is replacing calomel everywhere. It has all the effectiveness, not the effect of calomel. Insist on getting the original LIV-VER LAX, bearing the likeness and signature of L. K. Griggs, which is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. For sale by Kincheloe's Pharmacy.

to his little feathered helpers aiding him to improve his "stand of trees."

In nearly all wooded parts of the world, woodpeckers are to be found. There are said to be over three hundred species. It is a familiar sight in the orchard or along the roadside to see these birds busily searching for insects to appease their appetite. They are doing a great service by preventing the ravages of the countless enemies of the trees. A tree perfectly clean from insects will never be attacked, and it is only on trees already full of insects that the birds try to get their food. They nest in a small hole cut into the trunk of a tree, and as a rule use for this purpose the decayed remnants of a broken-off limb. They have no nesting material of any kind and the pure white eggs, generally four or five in number, rest on the soft cushion made out of decayed wood.—Our Dumb Animals.

"Jitney Bus" a New Rival of the Street Car.

Although a new feature in city transportation, the "jitney bus" has come into such popularity, particularly in the cities of the Pacific coast, that it is proving a serious rival to the service of the street-car companies and is furnishing some knotty problems for the municipalities themselves. The "jitney bus" is simply an automobile that carries passengers for five cents. "Jitney" is a slang term of an uncertain origin used for years on the Bowery in New York, and meaning a five-cent nickel coin. In Portland, Seattle, Los Angeles, and the cities of San Francisco Bay, there were nearly 3,000 automobiles engaged in this service in January, 1915, with the number constantly increasing, and the minimum daily earnings of these cars aggregated about $19,000. As a result of this competition, the railroads of Los Angeles are cutting down some of the runs and taking off cars. Now the "jitney bus" has been introduced in Denver, Kansas City, Mo., and Des Moines, Ia., and is rapidly making its way eastward.—From the April Popular Mechanics Magazine.

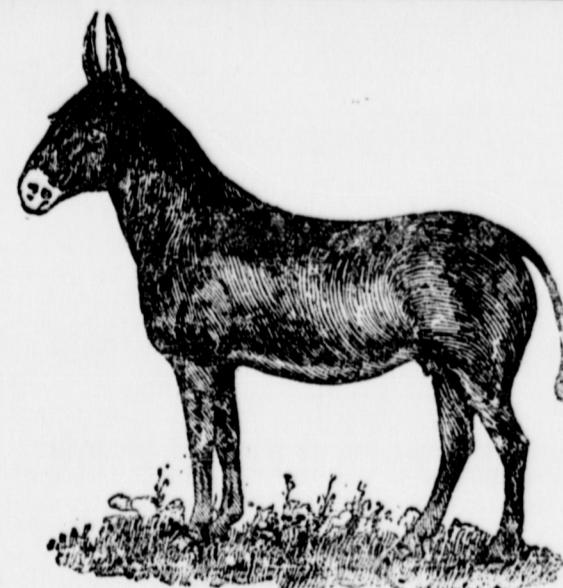

The Court of Last Resort.

Around the stove of the cross roads grocery is the real court of last resort, for it finally overrules all others. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been brought before this court in almost every cross roads grocery in this country, and has always received a favorable verdict. It is in the country where man expects to receive full value for his money that this remedy is most appreciated. Obtainable everywhere.

BEST RECORD IN THE STATE.

The following record of Judge Layman taken from the Elizabethtown News, is herewith printed with a deal of pleasure and satisfaction. The Breckenridge News is glad Judge Layman is making good, as it was one of his ardent supporters both in his appointment by Governor McCreary to fill out the unexpired time of Judge Cheff and in his race before the people. We are all proud of him in Breckenridge county and his splendid success as Circuit Judge. The News says:

"That Judge Layman has the best record of any circuit judge in the state, within the last year regarding affirmation or reversal of his decisions by the Kentucky Court of Appeals, was ascertained by a number of lawyers, who, yesterday, examined the record of all opinions handed down by the tribunal at Frankfort. Of all the decisions handed down within the last year sixty per cent. have affirmed the finding of the lower court. Of the decisions rendered by Judge Layman in his district ninety-two per cent. have been affirmed and of all the decisions handed down by him a fraction above ninety-four per cent. have received the stamp of approval of the Court of Appeals. This percentage exceeds that of any other Circuit Judge in the state."

GOOD TASTE IN LANDSCAPE.

"Cloverport is just the same and will never lose its personality. The homes are well kept, the streets are clean and the town never looked better," said a former Cloverport citizen Monday. The comment is encouraging and we know it is true. Recently we passed through a town and we could see the back yards from the train. The fences were horrid, there were old piano boxes, ugly chicken coops, wrecked grape arbors and enough rubbish in the yards to fill a hundred wagons. The towns over the county and along the Henderson Route should be planning some special civic improvement this spring. Beautify the vacant lots, keep the back yards clean and the front yards beautiful. Nature supplies the world with wonderful decorations and people with energy may make their dwelling places attractive with gifts from mother earth. Good taste does not crowd the lawns, yards and parks with plants and trees, but uses them for shade and comfort and to rest the eye. The sunshine, pure air and grass should be welcomed, and when this is done the landscape is a picture of artistic taste and beauty.

Decorate your church for Easter. Take some potted plants from your home and arrange them at the altar with white tissue paper wrapped around the jars. Flowers are significant of Easter and the day in small churches may be made bright and beautiful with your flowers.

Joe McCrume, a hustling young business man of Harned, and Paul Shrewsbury, a successful farmer of near Hardinsburg, are both favorably spoken of as good timber for the Circuit Clerk's office. They are staunch Republicans, and will make it warm for the other fellows if they decide to run.

A Smiling Face Is a Great Heritage

By ORISON SWETT MARDEN.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I just loike to let her in at the dure," said an Irish servant of a lady caller. "The very face of her does one good, shure."

How glad we all are to welcome sunny souls! We are never too busy to see them. There is nothing we welcome so much as sunshine. Someone has said, "A happy human face—it is the gift that may be made by poor or rich, by old or young. It is the gift to which all are entitled, with which all are pleased."

Oh, what riches live in a sunny soul; what a heritage is a smiling face—to be able to fling out sunshine everywhere one goes, to scatter the shadows and to lighten sorrowing hearts; to have the power to send cheer into despairing souls through a sunny and radiant disposition!

And yet all about us we see people going through life peddling vinegar, radiating bitterness, finding fault, and seeing only the ugly; worrying, fretting, cynical and pessimistic! Some people have a genius for seeing only the crooked, the evil and disagreeable. Pessimism is always a destroyer, never a producer.

We need more joy peddlers, and sunshine makers, more people who refuse to see the ugly, the bitter and the crooked; who see the world of beauty and perfection which God has made, and not the world which sin and discord and disease have made. We need people who see the man and woman whom God has made—pure, clean, sane, healthy—and not the ugly, diseased, discordant dwarf, the burlies of man, which wrong thinking, wrong living and sin have made.

A cheerful, optimistic mind is a sort of a prism which brings the rainbow colors out of things which are invisible to the pessimist.

The prism does not make the colors in the spectrum. They are everywhere in the light before our eyes. Our light is made up of all the different colors of the rainbow. The prism merely separates them and makes them visible to the eye.

The ability to radiate sunshine is a greater power than beauty or wealth. If you would do the maximum of which you are capable, keep the mind filled with sunshine, with beauty and truth, with cheerful, uplifting thoughts. Bury everything that makes you unhappy and discordant, everything that cramps your freedom, that worries you, before it buries you.

Take joy with you; cling to it, no matter where you go or what you do. It is your lubricating oil which would prevent the jars, the discords, and shut out the sorrows of life.

True religion is full of hope, sunshine, optimism and cheerfulness. It is joyous and glad and beautiful. There is no Christianity in the ugly, the discordant, the sad. The religion which Christ taught was bright, cheerful and beautiful. The sunshine, the "illes of the field," the "birds of the air," the hills, the valleys, the trees, the mountains, the brooks—all things beautiful—were in his teaching. There was no cold, dry theology in it. It was just happy Christianity!

Refuse to be gloomy. Cheer up! Get your mind off your troubles. Do not think about them. Think of the bright things in life. Think gratefully of the good things you have. Wake up, and be cheerful.

The Million Dollar Mystery

CHAPTER XV.

Another Trap Set.
If the truth is to be told, Jones was as deeply chagrined over the outcome

"I Shall Have to Request You and the Family to Accompany Me to the Station."

of the counterfeit deal as was Braine. They had both failed signally to reach the goal sought. But this time the organization had broken even with Jones, and this fact disturbed the butler. It might signify that the turning point had been reached, and that in the future the good luck might swing over to the side of the Black Hundred. Jones redoubled his cautions, reiterated his warnings, and slept less than ever. Indeed, as he went over the ground he conceded a point to the Black Hundred. He would no longer be able to keep tab on the organization. They had deserted their former quarters absolutely. The agent of whom they had leased the building knew nothing except that he would have to repair the place. The rent had been paid a year in advance, as it had been these last eight years. He had dealt through an attorney who knew no more of his clients than the agent. So it will be seen that Jones had in reality received a check.

More than all this, it would give his enemies renewed confidence; and this was deeper menace than he cared to face. But he went about his affairs as usual, giving no hint to any one of the mental turmoil which had possession of him.

It is needless to state Norton did not scoop his rivals on the counterfeit story. But he set to work exploring the cellar of the gutted building, and in one corner he found a battered old chair. He turned this over to the secret service men. There was one man he wanted to find—Vroon. This man, could he find him, should be made to lead him, Norton, to the new stronghold. He saw the futility of trying to trap Braine by shadowing him. He desired Braine to believe that his escape from the freighter had been a bit of wild luck and not a preconceived plan. Braine was out of reach for the present, so he began the search for the man Vroon. He haunted the water front saloons for a week without success.

He did not know that it was the policy of the Black Hundred to lay low for a month after a raid of such a serious character. So the Hargreave menage had thirty days of peace; always watched, however. For Braine never relaxed his vigilance in that part of the game. He did not care to lose sight of Jones, who he was positive was ready for flight if the slightest opportunity offered itself.

Norton went back to the primrose paths of love; and sometimes he would forget all about such a thing as the Black Hundred. So the summer days went by, with the lilacs and the roses embowering the Hargreave home. But Norton took note of the fact that Florence was no longer the light-hearted schoolgirl he had first met. Her trials had made a serious woman of her, and perhaps this phase was all the more enchanting to him, who had his serious side also. Her young mind was like an Italian garden, always opening new vistas for his admiring gaze.

He went about his work the same as of old, interviewing, playing detective, fattening his pay envelope by specials to the Sunday edition and some of the lighter magazines. Sometimes he had vague dreams of writing a play, a novel, and making a tremendous fortune like that chap Manders, who only a few years ago had been his desk mate. He really began the first chapter of a novel; but that has nothing to do with this history.

All ready, then. The chess are once more on the board, and it is the move of the Black Hundred.

The day was rather cloudy. Jones viewed the sky wearily. He could hear Florence playing rather a cheerless nocturne by Chopin. Fourteen weeks ago this warfare had begun, and all he had accomplished, he and those with him, was the death or incarceration of a few inconsequential members of the Black Hundred. Always they struck and always he had to ward off. He had always been on the defensive; and a defensive fighter may last a long while, but he seldom wins; and the butler knew that they must win or go down in bitter defeat. There was no half way route to the end; there could be no draw. It all reminded

"O, I realize, Jones, that all this unending mystery and secrecy have a set purpose at back. Only, it does just seem as if I should get mad some times with waiting and wondering."

"And if the truth must be told, it is the same with me. We have to wait for them to strike. Shall I get you something new to read? I am going down to the drug store and they have a circulating library."

"Get me anything you please. But I'd feel better with little sunshine."

"That's universal," replied Jones, going into the hall for his hat.

Had the telephone rung again at that moment it is quite probable that the day would have come to a close as the day before had, monotonously. But the ring came five minutes after Jones had left the house.

"Is this the Hargreave place?"

"Yes," said Florence. "Who is it?"

"This is Miss Hargreave talking."

"Yes."

"This is Doctor Morse. I am at the Queen hotel. Mr. Norton has been badly hurt, and he wants you and Mr. Jones to come at once. We cannot tell just how serious the injury is. He is just conscious. Shall I tell him you will come immediately?"

"Yes, yes!"

Florence snapped the receiver on the hook. She wanted to fly, fly. He was hurt. How, when, where?

"Susan! Susan!" she called.

"What is it, Florence?" asked Susan, running into the room.

"Jim is badly hurt. He wants me to come at once. O, Susan! I've been dreading something all day long." Florence struck the maid's bell. "My wraps. You will go with me, Susan."

"Where, Miss Florence?" asked the maid, alive to her duty.

"Where? What is that to you?" demanded Florence, who did not know that this maid was a detective.

"Why not wait till Mr. Jones returns?" she suggested patiently.

"And let the man I love die?" vehemently.

"At least you will leave word where you are going, Miss Florence."

"The Queen hotel. And if you say another word I'll discharge you. Come Susan."

There happened to be a taxicab conveniently near (as Vroon took care there should be), and Florence at once engaged it. She did not see the man hiding in the bushes. The two young women stepped into the taxicab and were driven off. They had been gone less than five minutes when Jones returned with his purchase, to find the house empty of its most valuable asset. He was furious, not only at the maid, who, he realized, was virtually helpless, but at his own negligence.

In the midst of his violent harangue the bell sounded. In his bones he knew what was going to be found there. It was a letter on the back of which was drawn the fatal black mask. With shaking fingers he tore open the envelope and read the contents:

Florence is now in our power. Only the surrender of the million will save her. Our agent will call in an hour for an answer.

THE BLACK HUNDRED.

As a matter of fact, they had wanted Jones almost as badly as Florence, but her desire for a book—some popular story of the day—had saved him from the net. The letter had been written against this possibility.

Jones became cool, now that he knew just what to face. The Queen hotel meant nothing. Florence would not be taken there. He called up Norton. It took all the butler's patience, however, as it required seven different calls to locate the reporter.

Meantime the taxicab containing Florence and Susan sped merrily toward the water front. Here the two were separated by an effective threat. Florence recognized the man Vroon and knew that to plead for mercy would be a waste of time. She permitted herself to be led to a waiting launch. Always when she disobeyed Jones something like this happened. But this time they had cunningly struck at her heart, and all thought of her personal safety became as nothing.

For the present she knew that she was in no actual physical danger. She was merely to be held as a hostage.

Would Susan have mentality enough to tell Jones where the taxicab had stopped? She doubted. In an emergency Susan had proved herself a nonentity, a bundle of hysterical thrills.

As a matter of fact, for once Florence's deductions were happily wrong. When the chauffeur peremptorily deposited Susan on the lonely country road, several miles from home, she ran hot-foot to the nearest telephone and sent a very concise message home. Susan was becoming acclimated to this strange, exciting existence.

Norton arrived in due time, and he and Jones were mapping out a plan when Susan's message came.

"Good girl!" said Jones. "She's learning. Can you handle this alone, Norton? They want me out of the house again, for I believe they were after me as well as Florence. Half an hour gone!"

"Trust me!" cried Norton.

And he ran out to his auto. It was a wild ride. Several policemen shouted after him, but he went on unmindful. They could take his license number a hundred times for all he cared. So they had got her? They could wait till their enemy's vigilance slackened and then would strike? But Susan! The next time he saw Susan he was going to take her in his arms and kiss her. It might be a new sensation to kiss Susan, always so prim and offish. Corey street—that had been her direction. They had put Florence in a motor boat at the foot of Corey street. He was perhaps half an hour behind.

Florence never opened her lips. She stared ahead proudly. She would show these scoundrels that she was her father's daughter. They pried her with questions, but she pretended not to hear.

"Well, pretty bird, we'll make you speak when the time comes. We've got you this trip where we want you. There won't be any jumping overboard this session, believe me. We've wasted enough time. We've got you and we're going to keep you."

"Let her be," said Vroon morosely.

"We'll put all the questions we wish when we're at our destination." And he nodded significantly toward the ship riding at anchor.

Florence felt her heart sink in spite of her abundant courage. Were they going to take her to sea again? She had acquired a horror of the sea, so big, so terrible, so strong. She had an experience with its sullen power. They had gone about four miles down when she looked back longingly toward shore. Something white seemed to be spinning over the water far behind. At first she could

Norton; it can't be done."

"A hundred dollars!"

"Not for five hundred," and the aviator callously turned away toward the young woman with whom he had been conversing prior to Norton's approach. The two walked a dozen yards away.

Norton had not served twelve years as a metropolitan newspaper man for nothing. He approached the mechanics who were putting about the machine.

"How about twenty apiece?" he began.

"For what?" the men asked.

"For sending that paddle around a few times."

"Get into that seat, but don't touch any of those levers," one of them warned. "Twenty is twenty, Jack, and the boss is a sorehead today anyhow. Give her a shove for the fun of it."

It was a dumfounded aviator who saw his hydroplane skim the water and a moment later sail into the air. These swift moving days a reporter of the first caliber is supposed to be not discern what it was. As she watched it it grew and grew. It finally emerged from the illusion of a gigantic bird into the actuality of an everyday hydroplane. Her heart gave a great bound. This flying machine was coming directly toward the launch; it did not deviate a hair's breadth from the line. Fortunately the men were looking toward the huge freighter a quarter of a mile farther on, and from their talk it was evident that that freighter was to be her prison—bound for where? Nearer and nearer came the hydroplane. Was it for her?

Florence Knew That to Plead for Mercy Would Be a Waste of Time.

It was impossible for the men not to take notice of the barking of the engines at last.

"The thing's headed for us!"

Vroon stared under his palm. It was not credible that pursuit had taken place so quickly. To test yonder man-bird he abruptly changed the course of the launch. The hydroplane veered its course to suit.

Florence heard her name called faintly. One of the men drew his revolver, but Vroon knocked it out of his hand.

"There's the police boat, you fool!"

"Jump!" a voice called to Florence.

She flung herself into the water without the slightest hesitation.

All this came about something after this fashion. When Norton arrived at the foot of Corey street a boatman informed him that a young woman of his description had gotten onto a fast motor boat and had gone down the river.

"Was there any struggle?"

"Struggle? None that I could see. She didn't make no fuss about going."

"Have you a launch?"

"Yes, but the other boat has half an hour's start, and I'd never catch her in a thousand years. But there's

"The money first. We don't lie any better than you do. Fork over. You'll have to trust us. We have no use for the girl once we get the cash."

"And you'll never touch a penny of it, you blackguard!" cried Norton from the doorway.

The agent turned to behold the reporter and the girl. He did not stop to ask questions, but bolted. He never got beyond the door, however.

"Always the small fry," sighed Jones. "And if I could have put my a hydroplane a little above here. You might interest the feller that runs it."

"Thanks!"

But the aviator would not listen.

"A life may hang in the balance, man!" expostulated Norton, longing to pommel the stubborn man.

"What proof have I of that?"

Norton showed his card and badge.

"O, I see!" jeered the aviator.

"A little newspaper stunt in which I am to be the goat. It can't be done, Mr.

hands on the money I'd have given it to him! Ah, girl, it doesn't do any good to talk to you, does it?"

"But they told me he was dying!"

Jones shrugged.

SPEAKER CLAUDE B. TERRELL IS SEEKING NOMINATION BY DEMOCRATS FOR TREASURER

Trimble County Man Submits Candidacy to Voters in Primary of August 7, Upon Record of His Public Services in General Assembly.

HAS TWICE PRESIDED OVER HOUSE

CLAUDE B. TERRELL.

BEDFORD, KY., March 25.—The Honorable Claude B. Terrell, of Trimble County, today announced himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Treasurer in the State primary of August 7, next. He will make an active campaign for the nomination.

Mr. Terrell is one of the best known of the younger Democrats, who have been active in politics and public life during the last few years, and enjoys an acquaintance that covers every section of Kentucky. He is a farmer, merchant and banker in his home town. He has served the Trimble and Oldham District in the General Assembly of Kentucky on three occasions, twice without opposition, and serving at two sessions as Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Terrell first entered State politics in the memorable legislative session of 1900, when the Goebel contest was before that body. He was a member of the Rules Committee of the House, one of the most important positions at that time, and in the gubernatorial contest, following the assassination of Governor Goebel, he was a member of the Steering Committee of the Democratic organization in the lower House. He was one of the five men of that body who kept its records intact during the days when W. S. Taylor prevented the General Assembly from meeting at the Capitol, and preserved those records so that they were later upheld in the courts of Kentucky.

Mr. Terrell came back to the legislative session of 1912, and because of his former experience was easily elected Speaker of the House. He was returned by his district to the session of 1914, Oldham County Democrats setting aside the custom of rotation in order that he might be thus signalized honored, and he was re-elected to the Speakership without opposition in the House. As presiding officer of the lower House he had much to do with the enactment of important legislation during the sessions of 1912 and 1914.

"I respectfully solicit your support,
"CLAUDE B. TERRELL."

HOW THE WISH CAME TRUE.

As I was coming down Walnut street one afternoon after school, I was wishing and thinking of a trip to the Panama Exposition.

Suddenly cries of frantic voices came to my ears, then looking down the street I saw a horse coming wildly toward me. I looked closer and there were people before my eyes in the survey. Not knowing whether I could do anything or not, I rushed to the street trying to head off the horse. At last it was done! It was all over. I was glad that I was a camp fire girl, so I could try to win my emblem, which is to be fearless.

Five weeks later, on returning from school, there was a box laying on the table, addressed to me. I opened it and there was a beautiful medal with a head on it. This surely could not be for me. I looked at it carefully, and saw it was the head of Andrew Carnegie, and it was a Carnegie Hero Medal. I took it out and there was a check, yes, a check, for five hundred dollars! A Wonderful Healing Influence In Kidney Troubles.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp Root.

Yours very truly,
H. W. SPINKS,
Camp Hill, Ala.

Personally appearing before me this 16th day of August, 1919, H. W. Spinks, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

Also especially adapted to adults who cannot take ordinary Quinine. Does not nauseate nor cause vomiting after taking the dose. Try it the next time you need Quinine for any purpose.
